From the 9th to the 13th November we left our typewriters to spend five exciting days pulicizing Glosa in the Royal Horticultural Halls in Westminster. The event was called the Global Partnership, and it brought together about 150 organizations working to free the world from such horrors as starvation, poor housing, malnutrition, tyranny, the ravages of nature, and slavery, which is rife in places such as Thailand. There was a terrible photograph of a small girl chained in a cellar to work for hours every day. There were exhibits on agriculture for the Third World, health, Environment, tourism, the women's struggle for equal rights, education, disaster relief, urban planning and Appropriate Technology. Glosa was the only language project there, and of course it was most relevant to every one of the others.

Side events included films, talks, discussions and meditation. Songs and dances by groups from many countries.

From reasons of economy Glosa shared a stand with an interesting project called Global Cooperation for a Better World, which was launched in the Houses of Parliament in 1988, and which now has groups in more than 65 countries. They meet to encourage people everywhere to discuss positive ideas for a better world, and to work in order to realize them. For further information write 28 Baker Street, London, W1M 4 DF. On the other side was Tourism Concern They are concerned with intelligent Tourists, who want to meet local people, to study the economy, ecology, history, life-styles etc etc of the region. They hadn't heard of Glosa before, and quickly became aware of the importance of a Global Auxiliary Language for the success of their own project. More about this project in this PGN.

There was a steady stream of visitors, and we can say that several thousand people now have not only heard about Glosa, but went away also with knowledge of its workings. We had a few of our mottoes on the walls, enlarged and strategically placed. Such as GLOSA IS THE INTERNATIONAL LANGUAGE YOU DONT KNOW YOU KNOW. We kept it all very simple. That the Vocabulary consists of Latin and Greek roots which they already know. And we proved this easily to them. Many were quite surprised to learn that so many words they had supposed were English were really Latin and Greek. On the other hand we were surprised and delighted to discover that many of the visitors were quite linguistically gifted, which made our task much easier. And very surprisingly quite a number had heard of Interglosa and other works of Professor Hogben...Mathematics for the Million, The Loom of Language, Science for the Citizen. Nobody however had heard of his Vocabulary of Science.

Poli-pe pre nuli-kron pa pensi de u fo mega importa de un Internatio Lingua pro universa facili precise eufoni komunika; anti-co, na pa habe zero no-facili de auxi mu logi e senti u volu. Many people had never thought about the very great importance of a Constructed language for universal easy accurate euphonious communication although we usually had no difficulty in helping them to recognize it. The very great value to us of these exhibitions is that we are able to deal immediately with people's first difficulties in accepting the idea. These objections are almost always the same; -

"English is now the international language" We explained that this was an idea being put about by the English-Teaching Schools, now huge vested interests. That the few Japanese who spoke such good English on Radio and TV were an elite, and that owing to serious lack of success English-teaching in Japan is now being scaled down. Less than one per cent of the Indian population can understand English, and that the few who do speak it with a strange admixture of local words and with a pronunciation incomprehensible to native English speakers. In fact English like all the old languages is far too complicated ever to become more than a temporary IAL. We explained that Glosa 1000 enables anybody to speak literally on any subject, and that it's not just a Get-By language.

One or two people suggested that Glosa might be a good idea for Europeans but doubted its use for the Third World. We explained that these Latin and Greek words were quickly getting into the world's vocabularies even against the wishes of some of the local conservatives. And that Medicine alone introduced the whole Glosa Vocabulary universally. We pointed out that every word in Glosa 1000 was out of the English Dictionary, but spelt phonetically.

We had several interesting conversations with non-Europeans including an Iranian student, who immediately recognized most of Glosa 1000.

An Indian was very interested indeed especially when we were able to point out the close relationship of European languages to Sanskrit, in particular the well-known group...Yoga, Anglo Saxon Yoke, Latin Juga, and Greek Zygo, all meaning to join one to another, as Yoga joins to God.

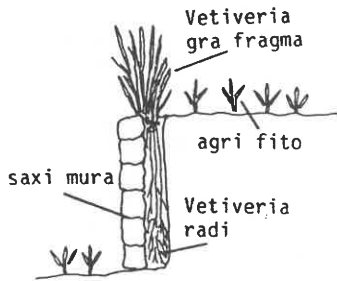

We had been informed that on the last day 800 children would be coming. This made us a little apprehensive, but in fact they turned out to be quite well-behaved and fascinated by Euro-Glosa. Some were studying a language and became very excited on learning that Glosa has no complicated grammar - no gender and no flexions. They quickly got interested in the vocabulary and saw how it could help with their science studies especially biology.

Sales were mainly of Glosa 1000 on one A3 sheet and PGN's; although since the show we have received some requests for the new "18 Steps to Fluency in Euro-Glosa", and orders for the forthcoming "Introducing Euro-Glosa" book and cassette.

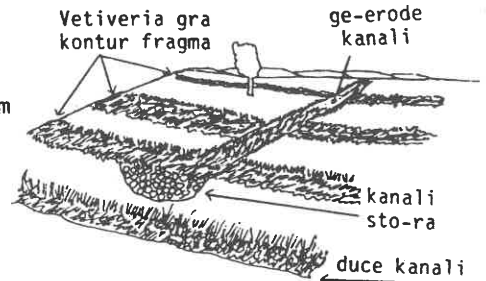

Summing up, Global Partnership gave us valuable opportunity to meet many people from very different backgrounds, ages and nationalities, and to learn their various approaches to the idea of an International Language.

Global Partnership pa gene organiza per Trust pro Eduka e Developo, u British ge-registra karita.

LEXI-LALI ..... GENETICS AND KING KIN

LEXI, word, as in LEXIcon, dysLEXIa, (bad-speech)

LALI, chat. Cf. LULLAby, GLOSSO-LALIA, speaking in tongues.

IE rt = IndoEuropean root. As usual Glosa words are in capitals; and here also coGNates.

IE rt GEN = enGENder, beget, be born. as in OXY-GEN (acid-GENerator. It was once believed that all acids contained OXY-GEN.

HYDRO-GEN gas when burnt GENERates HIDRO (water). GENesis, being born.

HOMO-, HETERO-GENeous (like & different KIND, sort)

GENtle, (well-born)

Sanskrit JANAs, race, creation.

English KIN as in phrase one's kith & KIN. KIN IS COgnate with G. GEN-.

Old English CENnan beget, give birth to.

German KIND, child as in KINder-garten.

KIND, sort, GENus are both coGNate (together-born) they have a common ancestor.

KIND also means benevolently born.

the KING. Old English CYning, man of noble birth (KIN = GEN)

Latin Surprisingly Latin Nature, Nature, Nation, preGNant, reNaissance(re-birth) etc.

Old Latin had an initial G giving GNasci, to be born, GNatus, born, which makes the relationship with Greek GEN quite clear.

QUEEN was in Old Saxon QUAN and meant woman, now the woman of a country.

It is coGNATE WITH G and Glosa GYNA, WOMAN

Russian JENA and Sanskrit JANI, woman and GANA, goddess

Original IE rt was GWUNA, woman

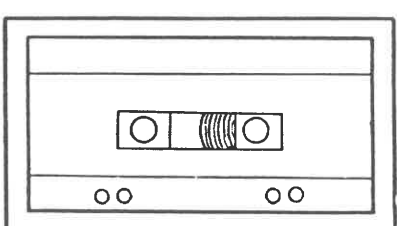

One of the great advantages of Glosa is, surely, that it brings out the close relationships between our most evocative and emotive words and modern high tech terminology.
